Currently I'm running the Nvidia binary, and I want to update to Nvidia's latest driver release. But I'm wondering: What happens if I install the driver via the Ubuntu Software Center and let it go through? PabloV 01-21-2012, 10:26 AM What happens if you install the new driver from the website ( billzss 01-21-2012, 10:30 AM Thanks, Pablo, but I meant installing the new driver via the Ubuntu Software Center... slayraptor 01-21-2012, 10:32 AM Why wouldnt you install the binary? Billz 01-21-2012, 10:35 AM Somebody already asked that. 01-21-2012, 10:47 AM But the driver installer provides automatic system-wide update via the Software Center. You can use it without problems. 01-21-2012, 10:53 AM How do I know what the "new" drivers are? Is there a list of versions? And would those auto updates happen in the background while I'm on Linux? I know it's a big update and I just want to make sure I'm not going to somehow mess up my system. 01-21-2012, 10:55 AM You have to start using the driver from the software center to get the automatic update.
